ger; Barnum the mule buyer and chairman, is politically dead. Wisconsin never had but one member of the cabinet, and that was Randall, as postmaster general under Johnson.

The Democrats have commenced biundering again in Congress. They take to blundering like they do to a distillery.

Henry Ward Beecher pronounces Robert G. Ingersoll the greatest living Amer ican orafor. Mr. Beecher is sound once

The "philanthropie" part of the Democratic party wants a Southern Democrat in the new cabinet. No political enemy will find a place in Garfield's cabinet.

Twenty-five papers in the State have already pronounced for Mr. Keyes for United States Senator. Twenty-five more will be in the ranks before the close of the month.

Public sentiment demands that there should be a stalwart administration during the next four years, and General Garfield is not going to turn a cold shoulder on that sentiment.

"The greatest show on earth," of political stupidity and moral corruption was was Barnum's management of the campaign for the Democrats. It beat any exhibition ever given before in this coun-

Talk has already commenced in Congress. It would be a good thing for the be put on the congressional chin when great deal of work to do.

It would be a good thing for the mechanics and laboring men who have small earnings, and want to invest in govern. ment securities, if Sherman's idea could be carried out, to issue 400 millions of 4 per cent. bonds in denominations of $10, $25, and $50.

There are those who want Alexander Stephens to go in the cabinet of President Garfield. The Democrats may rest assured that none but good Republicans and true friends to General Garfield will have a cabinet portfolio. This is the w' - just, and common sense view of the subject.

In a mounting its preference for United States Senator, the Janesville Gazette dues itself sub-stantial justice in placing party welfare above the welfare of the whole people. This is true Republicanism.—Madison Democrat.

It is true Republicanism, common sense, and justice, to fill offices with good and. competent Republicans. We believe in that kind of doctrine. We believe in that kind of civil service reform. If a man is honest, if he has ability, if he is a true friend to the party and defends it in sunshine and in storm, if he has done hard work for the party and never became weak-kneed when there was fighting going ou, the Gazette believes in rewarding just that kind of a man; and we do ourselves "substantial justice," in contributwelfare of the people by supporting Mr. Keyes for the Senate. There may be more brilliant orators than he is, greater constitutional lawyers, men higher up in what is called "statesmanship," but the people want a man who can go, to the Senate with the industry, the ability, the personal influence to do some hard work for the people he represents, for the State at large, and for the party which gave him the position. A man who will do this will contribute to the "welfare of the whole people," and will not fail to dignify the high office of United States Senator. We believe Mr. Keyes fills the bill. We believe he will do his duty. We be: lieve he will be a safe man to be elected Senator. We know he has done a great deal of work for the party, and we are convinced that he can do a great deal of city in the Umted States; a telephone hard and valuable work in Washington for the State. For these reasons we sup port him, and shall not be slack in urging him for the place we regard him so well qualified to fill.

it will be remembered that the Georgia electors did not meet to cast their votes for President and Vice President, on the In ten years more than forty million acres day and in the manner prescribed by the of land had been changed from a wilder-United States law. This is creating much | ness to rich and profitable farms. He bediscussion, and if the law of the United States is supreme, and precedents are worth anything, the vote of Georgia can not be counted. There seems to be no relief for the State against the provisions of the supreme law.

It may not be uninteresting here to give a brief history of the Wisconsin case, which occurred in 1856. From that time to the help prospering until the continent is present, there has been no failure on the part of the Presidential, electors to cast their votes for President and Vice President in accordance with the constitution, except Georgia, which happened last week. The Wisconsin case is as follows: The five electors were prevented from meeting by a snow storm which so blocked the railroads as to suspend travel to the State capital. The college met the next day and voted for John C. Fremont. As in the two previous cases the vote in doubt would not affect the result, whether it was counted or not. The certificate was read by tellers, including a state. ment of the reasons for its being east on a day different from that fixed by law. No provision had been made by either house in regard to meeting the question

Mr. Letcher, of Virginia, when the certificate of Wiscomin was hunded to the day.

Barnum, the showman, is out of dan- tellers, rose and objected to its reception. The presiding officer, Mr. Mason, of Virginia, called Mr. Letcher to order and disregarded his objection. One other certificate only had to be read, which completed the count. The objection was not renewed, and Mr. Mason met the case by declaring:

> of Pennsylvania, having the greatest number of votes for President, and that number being a majority of the whole number of electors, has been duly elected."

Mr. Toombs, of Georgia, protested against the action of the presiding officer, and amid some confusion the joint assembly was dissolved by the President of the Senate leaving the chair.

In the debate which followed the whole subject of the power of the President of the Senate and the functions of either house in relation to the count was discussed. An attempt was made in the House to cause the reassembling of the The Monroe Extension of the two Houses "to complete the count," but no action was taken. A majority of the House believed that because the tellers had included the vote of Wisconsin in the Itabulated statement read by the President of the Senate, that the vote of the State had been practically counted. This does not appear to have been Mr. Mason's view of his own act.

ABOUT THE FUTURE OF THIS COUNTRY.

The United States, comparatively speaking, is beginning to be something. The country is entering upon an era of prosperity never before known on the American continent, and is just begincountry if some effective padlock could ning to be prosperous. The strides been unequaled in any nation or in any period of the world's history. Such gigantic schemes of enterprise as are now going on in the United States, are amazing. Corporations that command their millions, and an influence which can make commercial circles and business centers tremble, are engaged in mighty projects. The Northern Pacific railway is to be completed. Men of capital have taken hold of the enterprise, and forty millions of dollars has been subscribed with which to complete the great work. When this is done, to repeat the words of Colonel Ingersoll, "new States will be born in the great Northwest." But this is not the only scheme of dazzling importance which is now going on in the United States. It will be only two or three years before the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and the Atlantic and Pacific railway companies, combining their strength and utilizing their forty million acres of a land grant, will have a direct route from St. Louis to the Pacific, which will be a more pleasant and convenient route than the Central and Union Pacific. Another powerful railway corporation will be pushed to San Diego, California, and it will be but a few years at most before people can ride in palace cars from Milwaukee and Chicago to the City of Mexico.

never more busily engaged in moving into use, and yet they are unable to meet the demands for business. There is a meaning in all this which needs no explanation. The country has 90,000 miles of railways; unlimited credit; gold and silver mines that yield their tens of millions every year, and are becoming richer; hundreds of thousands of square miles of coal fields; mountains of iron which can produce enough for the whole world; telegraph lines that connect every town and system which is said "makes everybody in the city live next door;" and a common school system which beats the

The Electoral Count Resolution to Be Opposed by the Republicans.

Washington, Dec. 8,--The Republican Congressmen met in cancus to-night, at which the Morgan electoral count rule was the subject of general discussion. Mr. Lapham offered a resolution that the rule was unconstitutional, and should be opposed. He spoke on the question, and was followed by Messrs. Others expressed a desire to have some provision for counting the electrical vote insemuels as the Constitution of the constitution o the electoral vote, inasmuch as the Constitution, as it now stands, is vague, but it was agreed that it should be by amendment, and not a mere Congressional rule liable to change at any time. Lapham's resolution was unanimously adopted. It was decided to continue the debate for the present, and hold a joint caucus, in a day or two, with the Senato Republicans to determine what final action should be in the case. It is considered very suspicious that the Democrats push this measure now, when, if honest about it they know that it will not be needed for four years at least. In the meantime, the valuable days of the short session are being used up, and if that course is persisted in an extra session

THREE PER CENT BONDS.

Secretary Sherman's Views on the New Measure.

Washington, Dec. 8-Secretary Sherman will not antagonize the 3 per cent bond proposition. In speaking of this matter he says: "I think the Secretary of the Treasury ought not to be bound to the limit of 3 per cent, but if this should be the ultimatum of Congress, I will do my utmost to make it successful; and if the tame ever was in this country to sell 3 per cents at par it is now, but I still think it would have been wiser to leave the Secretary, whoever he may be, some latitude, so he may take advantage of circumstances. I should try a 3 per cent loan even if the law gave more latitude."

BROKEN RAIL,

Geneva Lake, Wis., Dec. 8.-Lust. evening the Lake Geneva mail train was thrown from the track by a broken rail about four miles south of here, and the cars were thrown down an embankment about forty feet, turning completely over. The engineer, fireman, express messenger, and one passenger escaped unburt. All the others, trainmen and passengers, sustained braises more or loss severe. The engine did not leave the track, and the passengers and mail were brought here on that.

CHICAGO GOSSIP. From our Regular Correspondent.

Списацо, December 6.—In my last letter to you, I made a slip of the pen, and said that the cost of coal laid in the yards, &c., was $5.72 per ton. It should be $4.72. While I am on this subject again, I may as well give an instance of one of our prominent coal dealer's money making prochvities. An honest gentleman ordered six tons from him the 1st of November or thereabouts. He said | he was very busy with orders, but would deliver it as soon as possible-probably in two or three days at farthest. That afternoon and night it rained very hard, and the five tons of coal and one ton of rain water and short weight was delivered promptly next day, at an advance of 25 cents per ton, no price being previously agreed upon. Such is life in the coal ning to Gratiot. Engineers have just regions of Chicago. This man is a prom ment member of the coal dealers' combination league. "How did he know there was only five tons?" The gentleman had it weighed two days afterward, when it got moderately dry—every pound of it—and as a consequence, they are both involved in a law suit, the purchaser utterly refusing to pay for what he did not receive. No doubt there are some honcest and man in our midet, but they contend man in our midet, but they contend man in our midet, but they contend man in our midet. est coal men in our midst, but they can not be distinguished just as long as they persist in weighing on their own scales. The formation of a missionary society in our midst, is strongly talked of, with one sole object in view—the reformation and necessary, as readily as gold, silver, or national currency. This will add consid-erable to the circulating medium in the onty. They will be issed February 1st. Fine plates are now being engraved.

The annual temperance crusade, was inaugurated in this city two weeks ago by Mr. Bain, and Mrs. Hellen Foster, a lady lawyer from Iowa. These worthy exponents of the good cause and cham-pions of morality, were listened to with rapt attention by large and appreciative audience of both sexes. Their warfare at present is against the non-enforcement of the liquor traffic and Sunday laws, and the raising of all saloon licenses to $1,000 per annum. Mrs. Foster is an eloquent speaker, and a true Christian wife and mother. FRIDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 10.

At present there are 3,200 licensed and 200 unlicensed saloons in this city. The number of retail groceries is 4,000. The number of hogs received in Chicago for the month of November was 1,112,-

A Missouri gentleman informed me that the present immense traffle over the Chicago bridge near the suburb of St. Louis, would very soon necessitate the building of another by this city, to keep up with the great export of merchandise from Chicago to the far West.

Twelve heavily halen coal vessels have come in since last Tuesday, thickly coated with ice.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY.

The Sheep a True Cosmopolite. THE reader of current agricultural and economical literature cannot overlook the frequent reference to the especial adaptability of some mentioned locality for the business of sheep lus-bandry. From each State including within its limits any considerable bodies of unoccupied lands, and from every Territory, are sounded praises, and are heard invitations to capital and enterprise, to come in and partake of the good things in store for sheep husbandmen. The universality of this testimony is its passport to eredibility. South, East, West—in short, all over this head, and for the Children Hard. south, East, West—in short, all over this broad land, from the Gulf to Hudson's Bay—there is scarcely a county, rarely a farm, where the sheep, in some of its varieties, could not find a comfortable and profitable home. A true cosmopolite, readily adapting itself to surroundings, whether of luxury or parameters in the state of the surroundings. penury, industriously picking a livelihood from the scanty herbage of the mountain side, or reveling in the luxuriant herbage of the fertile valley; withstanding the extremest exposure when occasion requires, or enjoying the comforts of shelter and protection when these are to be had; consuming, where allowed access to them, nearly four hundred forage plants, though subsist-ing upon any of them when compelled by necessity, returning under all air by necessity; returning, under all cir-cumstances, more than an equivalent for what it receives, the sheep naturally finds friends in every land, and raily finds friends in every land, and eulogists are not wanting whenever and wherever pen and speech find sway.

The glowing pictures that come in from every direction, when divested of such coloring as pride of locality may have prompted the authors to have thrown around them, will rarely be found to be overdrawn. The several breeds, in some of their varieties and breeds, in some of their varieties, and in proper numbers, will be found to fit into the husbandry of every neighborhood, and to especially commend themselves to every observing husbandman. There is evidence to prove that every acre annually sown to wheat, while keeping up its quota of grain, can be made to subsist one sheep without any additional draft upon its fertility. If this is true of wheat, why not equally so of corn, and oats, and the other cereal crops going to make up the routine of American farming? Without taking into account the result of such addition to the general productive wealth of the country, let each farmer compute the benefit which would inure to himself if the value of a fleece and the increase from one sheep were added to the annual yield from each acre of his growing crops. If shorn of one-half its dimensions, the product seems suffi-ciently attractive to invite the attention of every thoughtful farmer. He need not turn his eyes away from his own good acres when the praises of some other locality are being sounded. No matter what may be said of others, let him but develop all the possibilities of his own surroundings, and the outlines for an equally attractive picture will probably be found at his hand.

No royal road to success opens up before the shepherd, any more than to his toiling brothers in other branches of live-stock husbandry. However mel-lowed by distance, or embellished by the pencil of enthusiastic observers, a closer view of the flock, the fold and the range will indicate the same neces-sity for constant care and occasional hard work that is found inseparable from successful sheep husbandry in one's own vicinity. -- National Live Stock Journal, Chicago

Raising Wood for Fuel. The subject of planting and cultivating trees with a view of raising wood for fuel is receiving considerable attention in most of the Western States. Some enthusiasts have gone wild on the subject. They have attempted to show that it is policy for every farmer to raise his own fuel. They would have him appropriate some of his best prairie land to timber culture and give as much attention to the cultivation of young trees designed for fuel as he usually gives to crops that furnish food. Now most of the Western States are so well supplied with soft coal that it is obtained at a merely nominal price. In many localities sufficient coal to supply the wants of a family during a year may be obtained with the corn or grain produced on an acre of land or the butter made from the milk of one cow. In these localities the cost of a ton of coal that requires no preparation for the stove is less than that of sawing and splitting a cord of wood. When coal is cheap and plenty, and is as easily distributed as it is in nearly every portion of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri and Iowa, there is no economy in raising wood for a common article of fuel on land that will produce good crops of corn, small grains or grass. Some wood is always desirable for kindling coal and for maintaining quick fires, and if it can not be obtained at reasonable rates from natural forests in the vicinity it is policy to plant trees. When trees are to be grown for the purpose of supplying fuel it is advisa-ble to plant them on land that is of little value for tillage purposes. There are generally on every considerable farm several acres of land that can not be cultivated with profit, for the reason that it is rough, stony, wet or sandy. By selecting trees adapted to these different kinds of land, fuel may be produced at a small cost, as the soil on which the trees grow is of little or no value for agricultural purposes.

Quick growing trees do not produce the best kinds of wood for fuel or other purposes, but the fact that they are quick growing commends them to percultivated with profit, for the reason quick growing commends them to persons who are in a hurry to procure a supply of kindling wood. No tree, except the willow, grows quicker or is propagated easier than the cottonwood. It grows readily from It grows readily from seeds or cuttings. On the treeless prairies of Minnesota the farmers obtain a forest of cotton-wood trees with little trouble or expense. In early spring they cut the branches of vigorous trees into pieces about a foot long, and drop one every three feet in the furrow as the land is being plowed. No cultivation is re-quired. The presence of weeds between the rows of young trees is said to be an advantage, as they afford protection to the young trees the first winter after they spring up. After the first year the trees afford so much shade that few or no weeds appear. On moist land that can not be plowed they stick cuttings into the ground, and allow them to take care of themselves.—Chi-

THE GAZETTE. New York Diamond-Owners and Fruits Not Suited to Field Cul-Horse-Fanciers.

THE attention of the public is attracted by the recent diamond thefts which have occurred among what are called "gentlemen." E. R. Stoutenburgh, who inherited an income of $6,000, but has wasted his property, has just been sentenced to the Penitentiary for two years, the crime being of this nature: A diamond had been placed in his care, and he had an imitation (made of paste) substituted for the original stone. Another case is that of Crowley, who has had a friend arrested for a similar offense. In another instance a gentleman took a diamond ring to a gold-smith for repair. He called for it in a few minutes, but found the stone re-moved and a paste imitation substituted. It is not now considered safe to leave a ring for any such purpose, and hence in cases of repair the owners remain and watch the work until it be finished. This being the case among respectable people, we need not wonder at the attempts made on such property by pro-fessional thieves.

The dealers in precious stones decline mentioning the names of their best customers, as this would expose them to the attempts of sneak-thieves and burglars. The latter, however, have a very correct idea of the diamond-precious and purpose and purpose and produce the standard production and produce the standard produce and produce the standard productions are standard productions. owners, and such property may well be considered musafe. This is shown by the fact that a leading performer who owned a larger amount of jewelry locked it carefully in her trunk and then locked her room. The flat was also locked so that no one could enter muses admitted (exempt by the nea of unless admitted (except by the use of false keys), but when the lady returned she found that both her room and her trunk had been entered and property to the amount of $3,000 taken away. The thieves evidently knew where the plun-der lay, and had been on the watch for ar opportunity. Another case was that of Mrs. Daniel Torrence, daughter of Commodore Vanderbilt, whose diamonds were carried off by a midnight thief in a sadden and mysterious manner. They were valued at $5,000, and have never been recovered.

It is said that John Jacob Astor at-ways has a detective in his service, and his dwelling is never left unguarded. Hence he has never suffered from those depredations to which reference has been made. The detective who ac-companies Mrs. Astor to all places where her diamonds are to be displayed is said to be an elegantly-dressed gentleman, who mingles quietly among the guests, and yet keeps a constant watch upon the $90,000 worth of diamonds worn by his patroness. Speaking of the above-mentioned family, reference may be made to the changes in a rich man's taste. William Astor has just sold his racers, and has retired from the turf. He held a temporary distinction among sporting men, but has become weary of the expense and annoyance inseparable from such pursuits. A man must have a natural love of horses to adhere have a natural love of horses to adhere to equine amusements. Astor only "took it up" as an imitator of Belmont and Bonner. The latter, however, have a well-known passion for such animals, which explains their lavish expenditure. Bonner's outlay for taking care of one hundred line horses is not less than the control of the con than twenty thousand dollars a year. When you add to this the interest on the estimated value of the animals (three hundred thousand dollars), you have an expense equal to three hundred and eighty dollars per week. This is a degree of enthusiasm unequaled in the record of horsemanship. For thirty years Bonner has been buying the finest horses in America, and still he is, like Oliver Twist, asking for more. --N. Four Thousand Years Ago.

From one of these books, compiled after the manner of our modern ency-clopedias, and the compilation of which is shown to have been made more than 2.000 years B. C., it has been as-certained, what has long been supposed, that Chaldea was the parent-land of as-tronomy; for it is found, from this com-pilation and from other bricks, that the Babyloniaus catalogued the stars, and distinguished and named the constellations; that they arranged the twelve constellations that form our present zodiac to show the course of the sun's path in the Heavens; divided time into weeks, months and years; that they di-vided the week, as we now have it, into seven days, six being days of labor and the seventh a day of rest, to which they gave a name from which we have derived our word "Sabbath," and which day, as a day of rest from all labor of every kind they observed as rigorously as the Jew or the Puritan. The motion of the heavenly bodies and the phenomena of the weather were noted down, and a connection, as I have be-fore stated, detected, as M. de Perville claims to have discovered, between the weather and the changes of the moon. They invented the sun-dial to mark the They invented the sun-dial to mark the movements of the heavenly bodies, the water-clock to measure time, and they speak in this work of the spots on the sun, a fact they could only have known by the aid of telescopes, which it is supposed they possessed, from observations that they have noted down of the rising of Venus, and the fact that Layard found a crystal lens in the ruins of Ninevch. Ir is inevitable that there should be more or less disappointment in fruit-growing. Exceptionally large profits under certain conditions have led thou-sands to engage in the business who do not understand it, and whose soil and location are not suited to this purpose. Comparatively few men have the patience and care for details necessary to successful fruit-growing on a large scale. There are, beside, some kinds of fruits which only succeed in particular localities. The craze for fruitgrowing comes from taking the profits of a few trees which happen to be in just the right places, and making these the standard for expected gains on a much larger area. Some apple, pear, plum or quince tree, standing in a rich garden, or where it gets the slops from the house, is found to yield an abundant of fine, large fruit. But it by no dange of fine, large fruit. But it by no means follows that the same fruit, if planted largely in a field of ordinary fertility, will do as well. It is very rare that we can get a field of deep, rich soil in a sheltered position suitable for growing the quince. The same is true of the more prolific varieties of plum, as the prunes. Even the apple and pear require more fertility than they find when grown largely; though for the pear, the manure should not be applied early in the season, lest it cause blight. Currants require a deep, rich and damp soil. The lower side of a garden, where they are often found, garden, where they are often found, and where they receive the wash of the manure applied every winter, is just the place for them. In such a location they will yield vastly more than if grown with ordinary field culture and manuring.

There are other kinds of fruit for which excessive richness is not desirwhich excessive richness is not desirable. For peaches a warm, dry soil is better than a very rich one, especially if the latter be damp. The bulk of the peaches grown are produced on sandy soils, rather peor than otherwise. But fertility is advisable wherever it can be had without loss of dryness. There are hundreds of acres of vineyards, planted a few years ago, that have been given up as upprofitable because given up as unprofitable, because planted on cold, wet and unfavorable planted on cold, wet and unfavorable soils. The grape does not need high manuring; in fact, too great growth of vine is the difficulty which mostly troubles inexperienced cultivators. Then comes mildew of fruit or foliage, or both, and the vineyard soon becomes nearly worthless. For most cultivators are stronger or the context of the tivators a rather poor soil. provided it is dry and warm, is best for grape-vines. It will not be as troublesome for them to manage, and they will be less likely to make an entire failure. Good culture is much more important for growing grapes than great fertility. Coarse manures may be entirely dis-pensed with if the soil is kept loose, and some mineral fertilizers are occasionally given. The vine-dressers of France use no manures except ashes, and these mainly from burning the annual prunings.

The habit of a tree or plant should be studied with especial reference to where it has been most successful. The low banks of streams with deep, rich deposits are the places best selted to the quince. Old fence-corners, where the fence or something else is high enough to shield from which the enough to shield from violent west winds, are also excellent. The quince is not entirely hardy, and more than any other tree needs some windbreak. Neglect in supplying this is the frequent cause of failure in growing quinces on a large scale. In places where the thermometer goes very low, quinces cannot be grown even in sheltered locations. They blossom late, and are rarely injured by spring frosts; but it is the severe cold of winter that does most harm to this front transfer.

The apple, pear and cherry seem in the order named most adapted to general field culture on any kind of soils. I think I would place the pear shead of the apple as an easily-grown fruit but for the blight. An orchard of pear-trees, even of standards, if the right varieties are planted, will yield a good many crops before anything can be sold from apple trees planted at the same time. But the losses from pear, blight time. But the losses from pear-blight have been such that it is probable there have been more failures in attempting to grow this fruit than any other, -- Wat. J. Fowler, in Examiner and Chronicle.

The proverbial curiosity of women led to a smash-up at the Continental Colliery, near Pottsville, Pa., recently. The slope engineer went home to his dinner, and the fireman remained in the engine house waiting for his wife to appear with his lunch. She being considerably behind time, the fireman besiderably begind time, the mreman oc-came restless with hunger and started for home. While he was gone, the wife, by another route, appeared at the engine house with his dinner. The fireman not returning immediately, his wife got tired waiting and commenced examining the pictures pasted around the room. This soon grew monotonous, and in casting about for something else to entertain herself with, she spied the clutched the lever in the hope of placing it as she found it, but to her horror it only increased the speed of the machinery. The drum was creaking and revolving with terrible rapidity; the piston rods flew in and out of the cylinder like lightning. The steam escaping hissed like fury, and the woman with a shriek rushed for the open air. Just then the wagon that started from the bottom when she started the machinery came out of the slope like a shot, landing on the top of the engine houses, mashing and crushing it into pieces. There was no work next day.

When Mr. Lapham opened his front door yesterday morning there stood the dog with the truant canary in its mouth. Remarkable as it is the bird was alive, and it now occupies its old quarters, not particularly "chipper," it is true, but still in passably good health.—Detroit Free Press.

There is no civilized nation in the Wester's Homisphere in which the ntility of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a tonic, corrective, and antibilious medicine, is not known and appreciated. While it is a medicine for all seasons and all climates, it is especially suited to the complaints generated by the weather, being the purest and best vegetable stimulant in the world. Rev. E. F. L. GAUSS, Galena, His., writes—"For over ten years I had been a great sufferer from pains in the small of the back and region of the Kidneys, which was most occurried; and at times almost insufferable. Dectoring brought no relter, and I was finally advised to go abroad and seek the climate of my youth. In Germany and Switzerland, eminent physicians, after close examinations, declared my sufferings to arise from disease of the Kulneys, of long standing, and could do mo no good. I was, however, benefited by the climate and consequently returned. Ne sooner had I been back and resumed my pastoral work, when the old trouble grew sgain so intense as to make life a burden. A few months ago I came in possession of one of Day's Kidney Pads, put it on, and the effects were truly wonderful. The pains at once grew less and are now, after wearing the second Pad, entirely gone, and there can be no doubt that I am entirely cuted, as I write this some weeks after its use, and am throng and loolr again the very picture of health. I write this perfectly voluntarily, and it is dictated only by truth and gratitude. Indeed, I consider the Day Kichney Pad Co. God's agents and great benefactors of mankind. May all the suffering be helped as I have been is my carniers wish."

H. A. PATTERSON, P. M.

The Census Enumerators. A REPORTER of the Evening Post recently accompanied one of the census enumerators in his tour through a number of houses in Baxter and Bayard streets. As an illustration of the dense population in this part of the city, it may be said that at noon yesterday the enumerator had completed his work in twenty-three houses, and had secured eleven hundred and twenty-seven names, an average of forty-nine names in each house, and even this is not a fair estimate, as in two or three of the houses families who could not speak a word of English, and who had recently moved in, were found who could not give any information concerning themselves, nor could any of the neighbors give it for them. In Baxter street, between Leonard street and "Bottle Alley," a number of dilapidated wooden and brick hovels were found, inhabited by the very poorest and most degraded class of Italians and negroes. In the basement of one of these hovels an Italian kept what he styled a "hotel." Here in a dirt and smoke begrimed room four or five feet below the level of the sidewalk a dozen or fifteen men and women were seated or standing drinking stale beer. The proprietor of the "hotel" said that these men and women were his "boarders." In another house a colony of Maltese were found who could not speak a word of English, and no interpreter could be found to make known the errand of the census-taker. In a rear house on Bayard street, near the corner of Baxter, a large number of Polish Jews were assembled, and in each family were from four to eight children. Abraham, Sarah and Rachel were the names most frequently recorded in this neighborhood. At first some of the women, who were generally at home, were inclined to refuse information, but when the purpose for which this information was desired was fully explained to them, generally through the agency of one of their children, they answered all questions readily. In several cases only young girls were found at home, and they answered the questions of the enumerator in a bold manner and joked with him about his work; one asked him if he would marry her or procure her a nice-looking husband if she would tell her age truly.

One woman who was in charge of a small grocery store in the basement of a Bayard street tenement said in reply to the request of the enumerator for her name, "I don't know my name nor my husband's name." The threat of the enumerator to call in an officer and arrest her, however, had the effect of stirring up her memory, and she gave all the information desired. On the upper floor of the same house a family of Polish Jews were found. Here, in a room measuring about twelve feet square, four grown persons and six children were sitting about a table eating their dinner. A pan of fish was cooking on the stove, and the floor was covered with dirt, and a child about a year and a half old sat on a bundle of dirty rags in a cradle gnawing a piece of "schwartz brod." The child's face was covered with dirt and sores, and the whole appearance of the room indi-cated the most abject poverty. The enumerator received the names of Abraham and Sarah his wife, their seven children and a boarder and left

On one lot about eighteen feet in width in Bayard street there were found three houses—a wretched dilapidated frame building on the front of the lot, a four-story brick building in the rear and a three-story brick building midway between them. In these four houses nineteen families, numbering seventy-seven persons, are accom-modated. In two of them the reporter saw the motto "God Bless our Home" displayed, and in almost every other room were Hebrew pictures, symbols and placards. In one room a middleaged man was found on his knees with his face to the east and a Hebrew Bible spread out on a chair before him.

Without changing his position he answered all the questions asked him by the enumerator, and was again engaged in his devotions, when the enumerator and the reporter left the room. -N. Y.

-The powers of a horse's memory were illustrated at Rochester, N. Y., recently, where the driver of a hook and ladder truck tried an experiment.

Three and a half years ago the city sold a team of horses that had been used for drawing the truck, and since then they had been employed in different work. One day recently the driver took the horses into the truck-house and turned them loose, whereupon each went di-rectly to his own stall and, when a gong was sounded, they ran out and

PRESERVING GREEN SHINGLES .-- A correspondent of the Country Gentle-man says: "I have practiced painting them as soon as laid. It is attended with trouble and considerable expense. I now prefer to use nir-slacked lime. Just after, and while the roof is wet, or during a light fall of rain, sow a few quarts, mostly on the upper part of the roof, once a year. The expense is tri-fling. I am satisfied it will preserve the roof twice as long as to leave them to the weather. The quantity used depends upon the surface to preserve. Your readers must have noticed on old roofs the shingles below the chinneys. Comment is unnecessary."

The Hon. Carawander De Forrest, ex-Legislator, ex-poet, ex-statesman, and now engaged in compiling a new school reader for the colored children of America, in which is a full-page cut of Paradise Hall and wood cuts of all the distinguished members of the Limekiln Club. The gentleman hails from Cairo, where he owns seven sand bars and a whole bend in the river.

The trio were introduced in a drove, and the Judge took the platform and

"Fur upwards of two y'ars I have read de weekly report of de purcedins of dis club, an' now dat I stan' face to face wid you, I am at a loss fur words to 'spress my deep emoshen [Cheers.] Dis club has done fur de culr'd race of America what de harvest apple an' de watermellynn could neber have accomplished in dar bo'n days. [Cheers.] I have already sent in my petishun for membership. In a few days I shall be one of you an' act wid you. [Cheers.] I want dis club to grow an' progress in influence until de black people of dis kentry will have no mo' hankerin' arter hens den de white folks have got arter persimmons. [Cheers.] Wid dese few remarks flung off at random, but well meant, I resoome my seat."

The Colonel came next, and his face wore a henevolent expression as he began;

"My brudders, let it be carved on my gravestun dat I war a member of de Limeviln Club. [Yells.] If dar had bin sien a club in de days of Cæsar, would Casar have fooled away his time wid de King bizness? [No! no!] Rome had its Colosseum, but it had no Paradisc Hall. [Yells.] I am gwine to jine to ye an act wid ye, an' while I confess to bein' a poo' orator, I have hopes of becomin' one of de most enthusiastic members." [Yells and cheers.]

The Hon. Carawander De Forrest said that his feelings were too deep for words, and he sat down again with such force as to break the back off his chair and land him over among Samuel Shin, Elder Toots and three dogs. He for-tunately struck on his head instead of his shins and thereby escaped all injury.

After order had been restored and the dogs turned out, the Glee Club pitched into an original song of twenty-seven verses, composed in less than two bears by the Head Shelicht Head in the Shelicht Head of the state of the hours by the Hon. Skylight Hastings, an honorary member living in Des Moines. An effort will be made to have it appear in the Congressional Record before Congress adjourns.—Detroit Free Press.

No Proof More Convincing. Could be produced to satisfy us that there is true merit in DAY'S KIDNEY PAD than the fact that it is being imitated. Already several worthless kidney pads are seeking a sale on the good reputation of this original and excellent pad.

BRIEFLETS.

-Frost last night. -Regular night for prayers at the churches.

-The ice is now over a foot thick, and the harvesters are as busy as bees. --Only one more day of school and then the children will be turned loose. -To-night is the time set for Water Witch company's dance, and Apollo hall is the place.

-The Geneva train seems to be an unlucky one. Another arcident has occurred, as will be seen from our telegraphic columns.

-Two carloads of cotton arrived here to-day by the Northwestern road, and were unloaded in just twenty-one minntes by a stop watch. Quick work. -It is stated that efforts are being made to secure a pardon for Ellen Hennessey, who has pleaded guilty to larcony, but has not yet been sentenced.

-Among the most attractive signs which appear on the street, are the twin ones with which George Stockton has graced the sides of the door leading into his dry good establishment.

-A fellow just from the plains says, You call this cold? Thunder! this is summer to where I've been. They'd call such a day as this on the plains just right for holding a picnie."

-The All Souls church folk held their fortnightly social in the church parlors last evening. An enjoyable supper was served and a happy time was had, in which a goodly unmber joined.

-Mrs. Peters was up before Justice Nolan yesterday afternoon to answer to the charge of using abusive language to Mr. Welch's daughter. Mrs. Peters an. swered the charge so successfuly that she walked off free.

-It is said that Riordan, who was assault with intent to do great bodily harm, will probably have a new trial granted, and will then plead guilty to simple assanlt.

-The arguments in the case of St. Patrick's Temperance Society vs. John Brown were to have been heard to-day, but Justice Brooks being busy with the Joy case, the matter has been deferred until to-morrow morning.

-The Wisconsin Shoe Company will, in the course of about ten days, give their factory its annual shut-down for the National Dyes. For brightness and durability of purpose of taking an inventory, and making some alterations for the further improvement of the works.

-Those who are managing the coming opera pledge their own word that the Opera house will be as warm as anyone can desire, as extra pains will be taken so that no amount of cold weather can cause a chill to the audience. Good.

-A horse attached to a buggy got tired of standing in the cold this morning, and started off toward the Corn Exchange. N. O. Clark gallantly checked the wild steed in its mad course, and knocked the sensation all out of a well planued item.

-To-morrow night "Davy Crockett" is to be presented at the Opera house by Frank A. Tannehill supported by an excellent company, the whole being under the management of Litt & McFarlane. It is a play crowded with good points and will be well given.

-This week is a busy one for all those interested in the Bells of Corneville, as nothing is being left undone which wilcontribute to the success of the entertainment, and there is no doubt it will be the best of the kind yet given here. The Opera house next Monday and Tuesday evenings ought to be crowded. -It now appears that the full grown wolf which was killed, lately, near Milton, has a history. When a cub, it was brought here from Kansas by a man, who, soon after, gave it to a boy. It was quite tame, but after getting its growth became ugly, and a short time ago ran away, and became a tramp, and met with a tragic death, which brought to the lucky trapper the usual bounty.

-City Marshal North, of Beloit brought to this city this morning and lodged in jail, a colored man named Alexander Young, who is a sneak-thief with an apparent fondness for boots and shoes. He stole a pair of boots of one man, and a pair of overshoes from Arthur Brittain, and on the latter charge was sentenced to twenty days in jail.

-The little building in which Joy started a grocery store in the First ward is now located in the Fifth ward, and is being occupied by Thomas and Frank Joy as a meat market, and they are having quite a lively trade. In the meantime the details of their First ward business are being handled in the courts, Justice Brooks to-day being busy in hearing the evidence. -John Duffy, the horse thief, who was captured here by Marshal Hogon, and which would show up any smaller, there sent back to Bloomington, Ill., to an- having been no extra mailing of circuswer to the charge of stealing a horse lars, or anything of that nature, as there and buggy there, has pleaded guilty to is often times.

the charge, and been sentenced to three years in the penitentiary at Joliet. He is already at work at the stone business which is carried on so extensively there. Marshal Hogan made a clever capture, but has not yet received any part of the bounty offered in that State for the capture of horse-thieves. -Dr. Horne yesterday noon received a letter bearing the postmark of Leeds, the trip from near the center of England to the coast, across the ocean, and then nearly one-third way across this continent. What makes the speed seem more remarkable is the fact that there has been the roughest weather ever known on the Atlantic, and eighteen steamers are now many days past due, some of them as much as eighteen days. -John Dowd was yesterday afternoon prought into the Police Court on a charge of being drank, he being the same individual who the night before turned his family out of doors. He was fined $10 and costs, and being unable to pay, was given twenty days in jail. Whisky seemed to be at the bottom of his troubles, and he was yesterday in a condition which indicated that he needed to be locked up long enough to get well so-bered off. He was in a semi-hysterical state, grating his teeth, crying, muttering, etc., and a little longer spree would have wrecked him completely, -James McDermott, who is a student in Dr. Palmer's office, was among the passengers in the Chicago street car, which was so badly wrecked night before last by an engine running into it. Several persons were more or less injured, the driver being the most unfortunate, having both legs broken. McDermott is reported by the Chicago papers as having been hurt about the head and chest, but he arrived home last evening, and seems to be as hale and hearty as ever. He says the sudden spill-out was rather a bad one and it seemed to him as if he was thrown forty or fifty feet, but had the good inck to escape any serious injury.

FROZEN FEET.

Robert Henderson, one of the inmates of the jail, is in a most prtiable condition. He got on a drunk in Beloit about three weeks ago, and fell asleep in a shed, and when found by the officers was nearly frozen. He was sent to jail for fifteen days, and has been successfully thawed out except his feet, which were both badly chilled, and one of them is now in such a condition, that though his time has expired, he cannot be moved to the poor house, which will be his next destination. He has no money, and apparently no friends in this part of the country, his wife and children being somewhere in Canada. He suffers greatly from the frozen foot, but is receiving all the attention necessary to help him along toward

THE WEEK'S COUNT, In accordance with orders issued from headquarters every postoffice has during the first seven days of December kept an accurate count of every bit of matter mailed at the office. In accordance with this annual arrangement the postoflice employes here have been counting for a week past, and yesterday began adding up the tally sheets. The following is the showing of the number of letters etc. mailed here:

Packages of merchandise....

This shows simply what has been put into this office to be sent elsewhere in the course of seven days. If to the total given is added the amount of mail received here, which is as much or more than that mailed here, and also the amount which is handled here as a distribution office for other points, some idea could be gained of the mail matter passing through this office in a single week. It has been a very light week too, there being but few in the whole year

HISKY RAILROADING

A serious accident, but fortunately one

An Ugly Collision, But Strangely no One Was Hurt.

Milton at half-past two o'clock yesterday morning. About midnight Conductor Peter Burke was there from Janesville with his train, and in switching, his train had occasion to push five cars out on the main track, eighty rods east of the depot. After doing his work, he coupled onto the cars and hauled them into the siding, as he supposed; but the last car on the east end, loaded with wheat, was not coupled to the others, and was left standing on the main track twenty rods east of the switch, and his brakeman did not discover the fact. An hour later the west bound night express, which has a card time of thirty miles an hour, came around the curve. Engineer Gage saw the car on the main track and set his air brake, but the brake gave out, and left the engine uncontrollable and moving at the And realizing this fact we have made on the following lines of s rate of twenty-five to thirty miles an hour. The engine struck the A Reduction of 10 to 15 per cent car and pushed it along the track forty rods before the train came to a standstill, but fortunately neither the forward part of the car nor the engine left the track. When the collision occurred the passengers were bounced out of their seats and received a lively shaking up, but did not suffer any serious injuries. The engine is a total wreck, and it is a matter of wonderment that it did not jump the track at the time of the collision, and ditch the whole train, in which event the result would have been terrible. The forward truck of the engine was driven back under the boiler, breaking the innuchinery badly, and the pilot, headlight and smoke-stack demolished, while the car were was struck was totally destroyed and its contents spread along the track forty rods. Fortunately other trains could run around the wreck on the siding, and there was no delay in the Conductor Burke will probably have

The railroad companies are so crowded with business that they are obliged to work their men to the utmost, giving little time for rest, and in consequence many are so nearly exhausted that it is difficult for them to discharge their duties as carefully and zealously as they ought. Another cause of the accident was the absence of the night operator, as he has been taken away from Milton and placed elsewhere, and no one was left to look after matters of this

SERIOUS CHARGE.

Edward Welsh, a young man from Be oit, was brought to this city last evening by an officer, and locked up to await his examination, which is to be held in Beloit next Tuesday. The charge against him is a very serious one, it being that of to-day as somewhat better, and it is hoped attempting violence upon a young lady named Mattie Weidermayer. It appears that he accompanied her home from a dance last Saturday night, and when near the house, insulted her and made an attack upon her, turned this morning from Colorado, She screamed and he tried to smother her where they have been living of late. His voice by placing his hand over her mouth, but her cries were heard, and the man at whose house she is employed as return now. It is not certain how long the fellow made his escape. It was on a servant girl, hurried to the door, and this charge that he has been arrested. pany is to open in Chicago next Monday good reputation, and if her statement of The young woman seems to bear a very evening, with the Bells of Corneville, the affair is true, it puts the young man
